With the given hand, a common approach in many bidding systems would be to make an opening bid of "1 Diamond." Here's the reasoning behind this choice:

1. Evaluate your hand: The total point count of this hand is 18 high-card points (HCP), which is considered a strong hand.
2. Suit quality: Although the Spades suit is headed by a King, it only contains one high-card stopper. The Hearts suit, on the other hand, is headed by the King and contains a strong sequence of KJT9. Having a strong suit like this increases the potential for establishing a long suit and winning tricks.
3. Distribution: Your hand has a long and strong Diamonds suit with AKQ75, making it an attractive suit to bid.
4. Suit ranking: Given that the Diamonds suit is the highest-ranking suit in your hand, it's generally advisable to open with your highest-ranking suit.

Therefore, with a strong hand, a solid long Diamonds suit, and a potential for tricks in the Hearts suit, the recommended opening bid would be "1 Diamond." This bid communicates the strength of your hand and the presence of a 5-card or longer Diamond suit to your partner. As always, it's important to consider your specific partnership agreements or bidding system when making your bid.
